Ben Morton Wright

President & Group CEO, Global Philanthropic

Based in London, Ben Morton Wright is highly regarded as a major gift strategist, an expert in structuring international campaigns and a specialist on higher education and Asian philanthropy.

Ben started his career in the new university fundraising sector, at Liverpool John Moore’s University and then Robert Gordon University where he ran two successful major gift campaigns during the 1990s. In 1998 he was appointed Director of Development for Aberdeen University to lead the first phase of its £150 million Sixth Century Campaign.

Since then Ben has served as senior strategy consultant to, amongst others, the London School of Economics; Trinity College, Cambridge; British Library; the United Nations Foundation; the University of Hull; the STARS Foundation; Institute for Cancer Research; Aquaculture Stewardship Council; the Birmingham Royal Ballet; King’s College London; the University of Liverpool; Sussex University, and a number of universities around the world.

Ben founded Global Philanthropic in 2002. In the decade since then, the company has grown into a leading global consultancy. He has supervised the establishment of Global Philanthropic operations in the UK, Australia, Hong Kong and Canada. Ben advises a number of private individuals and philanthropists around the world to develop meaningful philanthropic strategies. He is also a member of the UK Institute of Directors and was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts. Ben regularly speaks on philanthropic issues and trends around the world and we are delighted to have him here in Australia.
